THE WEEK IN SOCIETY.

THE LAST OF THE SPRING WEDDINGS.

MONDAY A BUSY TIME FOR BRIDES AND BRIDE-GROOMS-AMATRUR THEATRICALS, SUCCESSFUL

AND OTHERWISE.

May is almost always a quiet mouth. May merriages are deemed unlucky, and as the strongest-minded woman and the weakest-minded man never brave any superstition connected with a wedding, these little festivities in the apring are generally crowded into April or postponed until June. Then the days in May are too long, and the season is too nearly ended, to make dinner parties effective: and the dancing growd have little relish for germans in weather which AND OTRERWISE crowd have little relish for germans in weather which they had dancing enough during the winter months. There is little left, therefore, for fashionable people of desure to do, by way of amusement, except driving, iding and amateur theatricals. Central Park is exceedingly beautiful during this month, and the East Side Drive is thronged with carriages on warm and e earlier in the day-and on Sunday mornings-for, along the side of the fashionable drives. nd thus the gay world of New-York can never conten plate itself in Central Park in fine attire, on horseback or in carriages, at the same time, as the fashionable people of London are able to do in Hyde Park, by a happy arrangement of roads. This is a defect in Cenquently commented on by carriage-folk and equestrians. If the drive and the bride-nath ran close together for any distance on the East Side, both driving and riding would be more attractive, and more interested specrould flock thither for the pleasure of seeing the really fine horses and carriages which New-Yorkers can The display was not at its best last week, powever, for the days were dull, heavy and windy. It was March, with an east wind blowing most of the time. rather than May, the month of flowers. But it was just as well perhaps that the weather was bad. No May parties for children were attempted, and consequently there is less sickness among little people than

Amateur theatricals and other entertainments for charity, remained, and, directly or indirectly, a number of well-known people were interested in them. The most conspicuous incident in the ivate theatrical line was the performance of Miss Victoria Siddons and "her society company" was advertised) in "As You Like It." This w This was inended to be given week before last, at the Berkeley Lyceum, on Friday, but owing to a conflict between the police and the Mayor on one side, and the manent of the company on the other, it was postad until last Thursday, May 3. The place was no nger the classic Berkeley Lyceum, but, sad to relate unclassic Dockstader's. Well, the curtain went up this time; to say more than that, perhaps, would sound like unkind criffeism. There was a fairly numerous audience present, and its quality in spots was excellent. But so many annoying mistakes had been made by the manarement that the feeling among the innocent patronesses is anything but pleasant. The change of base threw out many of the theatre parties that had been arranged, notably Mrs. Van Auken's. This lady, however, attered her plans without delay, and took her guests to Daly's, which new that Miss Rosina Vokes is there, vies with the Lyceum Theatre for the fashionable patronage of the spring season. After the play there was a dance at Mrs. Van Auken's house, No. 421 Fifth-ave. A number of "extras" were seked in, and altogether there was an informal, merry party. Probably it will have the distinction of being the last dance of the season. this time; to say more than that, perhaps, would sound

A highly successful private concert, (if it really an he called "private," when it was held in Chickering Hall, which was crowded with people in evening dress), was given on Wednesday evening for the benefit of the Homoeopathic Medical College and Free Hospital. An excellent programme was carried out, Foote, Miss Emily Winant, Charles H. Clarke, Francis the Rubinstein and the Mendelssohn Glee Clubs. The nanagement deserve great credit for the manner which everything passed off. Much regret was felt There is always some expense attending such an entertainment, but a large sum must have been cleared for the hospital fund. Another successful amateur performance for charity was given at the Lyceum Theatre on Friday afternoon. It was the Babies' Shelter, of the Church of the Holy Communion, that benefited from this. The names of some well-known amateur and several professional players appeared on the programmes. Among the amateurs were Miss Rita Lawrence. Miss Alice Lawrence, Miss Laura S. Cellius, Valentine G. Hall, E. C. Warren and Edward Fesser, all under direction of Henry Miller, of the Lyceum. This theatre also supplied Miss Vida Croly for the cast and the charming young actress did her part well. an entertainment, but a large sum must have been

On Monday, April 30, the last wedding bells for bout a month to come were heard almost throughout the day. They seemed to say, "Marry now or Among those eager to obey was J. This was one of those "quiet" weddings, which, nevertheless, manage to be lavish displays for those asked to see them. use was profusely decorated with flowers; the The house was fair with golden hair, and she wore a lovely gown. Four pretty bridesmaids in white, and four ushers of sufficient distinction to be proper accessories of the occasion, assisted at the ceremony. The bridegroom carried himself with dignity, and divided the honers of the occasion with the bride. The responsibility for performing the ceremony rests upon the Rev. P. W. Stryker. The best man, who really was not needed, was William Beckman.

The Marshall-Banks wedding passed off better than was expected to do at one time, just before the cere Twelfth-st. and Fifth-ave., at 3:30 p. m. The bride-groom was Charles H. Marshall and the bride was Josephine M. Banks. The church was filled with well sed people, and finally the bridegroom and his best man took their positions near the pulpit, while the organist set up the wedding march. Everybody looked toward the door, expecting to see the bride appear, but she did not, and for some time (some say ten minutes; the bridegroom thought then it was about half an hour) those two unfortunate men had to stand waiting. But Mr. Marshall bore it gracefully. and everybody else did the best he or she could not At last the bridal procession appeared just as if nothing had happened nothing had, after which there was no hitch in the proceedings. It was an effective wedding, amid palms and such things, for the bride is young and the bridegroom tooks so. Later there was a reception at Mrs. Thomas Satterlee's. No. 19 East Forty-fourthst, at which every one had an opportunity to see how pretty the bridesmalds were-miss Marie Banks, Miss May Appleton, Miss Maria Onatavia and Miss Annie Banks.

Earlier in the day, this same church was the scene of the wedding of Rudolph E. Schirmer and Miss Martha G. Barnes. There were many people to see the ceremy, but only intimate friends were present at the wedding breakfast later at No. 106 East Tenth-st. the evening Miss Cecilia Andrews, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Andrews, of No. 48 East Sixty-seventh.st., was married to Charles M. Wilkinson, and a reception followed at the bride's mother's house. From every point of view this was a pretty and effective affair, marked by elegance and good taste.

The relatively minor entertainments of the week may be mentioned as follows: Mrs. Bulkley, No. 3 West Sixteenth-st., a dinner; Mrs. H. H. Butterworth 38 East Thirty-fifth-st., a reception; Mrs. Edward La Montagne, No. 40 West Twenty-eighth-st., a tea in honor of Miss Frith, who is engaged to marry Maurice La Montagne; Miss Flint, No. 14 West Thir-tieth-st., a tea; Mrs. George H. Peabody, No. 118 East ighteenth-st., a reception; Mrs. Thomas N. Bolles, b. 5 West Fifty-sixth-st., a reception; Mrs. A. Lan-ng Bard, No. 268 West Twenty-fifth-st., a musicale.

MISS HELEN BARRY'S THEATRICAL PLANS. Miss Helen Barry, the English actress who may be remembered as having played two starring engage ments at the Union Square Theatre some years ago rrived yesterday on the City of Berlin. Miss Barry is looking well, she has of late been a great sufferer from neuralgia, which has not been benefited by a stormy and unpleasant voyage. "I have come over here early," said Miss Barry, "to make all arrangements with Mr. Hill for my appearance at the opening of his new Union Square Theatre on September 3. I do not yet know what piece I shall first present, as I have brought several for his Just before leaving London I produced with great success, at a matinee, a four-act comedy-"Held Asunder," by Malcolm Watson, a young and promising playright, who is the brother of the designer of the Thistle. The critics objected to one neident at the end of the play, and that has since been changed.

"I shall not bring an English company as I am sure there are plenty of good people to be got here. I may, however, import a leading man who has played with me and is accustomed to my methods. As soon as Mr. Hill and I have decided or a play and company, as Mr. Hill and I have decided on a play and company, i shall go to some quiet watering-place to spend the summer, and try to get rid of my neuralgia. I was too ill to see any of the new plays in London, but nothing has made any great sensation lately. Miss flawthorne tried a place by the critic of "The London Times," and it proved a failure. I heard that "Pompadour," the new play at the Haymarket, is not doing much. Since leaving New York, I have been playing almost continuously in England. One of my best pieces has been the "Esmonds of Virginia." My tour here is to be for twenty-eight weeks, five of which will be passed at the Union Square Theatre."

The exercises of the unveiling were opened by the singing of the Choral No. 72 from the Matthew Passion music of Back by the Oratorio Matthew Passion music of Bach by the Oratorio Society. During the singing the American and German flags, which concealed the monument, were thrown aside revealing the beautiful marble behind William H. Cooke, ex-president of the Oratorio Society, who gave an account of the making of the monument and a description of it with the lesson that it was meant to convey and paid a tender tribute to the life and work of Dr. Damrosch. At the close of his address he presented to Walter Damrosch, Dr. Dampressing the hope that he might succeed to his father's every virtue. A chorus from the Arion Society then sang the "Sel Getreu," by Martin Blummer, after which Andrew Carnegie, the new president of the

The Shakespearean entertainment given on Monday evening in the Harlem Presbyterian Church by the pupils of the Jackson Seminary at No. 2,025 Fifth-.. in aid of THE TRIBUNE Fresh-Air Fund was largely attended. It was conducted by Miss Jackson, the principal of the school; Miss Mary E. Cherry, the professor of elecution, and Mrs. Snead, the vice-principal. The Rev. Dr. William Dunnell, the rector of All Saints' Protestant Episcopal Church, delivered the opening address. In his remarks he warmly praised the pupils of the seminary and their instructors for the interest they had in THE TRIBUNE Fresh-Air Fund and commended the movement as one of the most deserving of all charities. At the close of his address a large bronze vase filled with pink roses was

A number of the pupils gave short quotations from Shakespeare's works. Professor Harry Dunnell played Mendelssohn's "Spinning Song" and his own transcrip-tion of "The Old Folks at Home." F. Snead, J. B. Snead and H. Spooner gave Scene 1, Act IV, from "King John." Miss May Elliott followed with Scene 7, Act II, of "As You Like It." The plane sele by Miss Helen Sweeney was encored. Miss Bessle Meding was unusually good in her recitation of Scene 2, Act III, of "As You Like It." Professor Charles Wels played an arrangement of the Tannhauser March on the piano.

Scene 1, Act V, of a "Midsummer Night's Dream" was greeted with applause and laughter. The cast was as follows:

Theseus, Duke of Athens, . Miss Bessie Meding Queen Hippolyta, . Miss Geraldine Vignaux Philostrate, . . . Miss Ray Scheyer Prologue, . . . Miss Jennie Wilson Pyramus, Miss Nettle Herrman Thisbe, Miss Nellie Parsons Wall, Miss Ethel Franklin Lien, Miss Kittle Cook Moonstone, Miss Minnie Smith

As an encore she sang "Coming thro' the Rye." Miss Sadie Bloomer recited Scene t, Act II. of "Henry the Eignth." Professor Donnell performed with marked effect "Song of the Fairles" and "The Harp that Once Through Tayle Halls." The regular programmer Once Through Tara's Halls." The regular programme closed with a reoltation from "Henry the Eighth," Act IV., Scene 2, by Miss Florence E. Scott.

By special request Miss Cherry, who had worked hard to make the affair a success, recited "Aux Italiens" and "The Naughty Giri" with much dramatic force. In a short speech the Rev. Dr. Dunnell introduced a representative of THE TRIBUSE who explained how the money raised for the Fresh-Air Fund was expended. The entertainment netted about $125. This was the second one given by the pupils of Jackson Seminary in aid of the Fresh-Air Fund.

THE LAST NIGHT AT WALLACKS. MR. GILBERT MAKES A SPEECH AND THE COMPAN

18 CALLED OUT SEVERAL TIMES. An audience that filled every part of Wallack's Theatre assembled last night to see the final performance by the stock company. It was a representative gathering, including nearly every well-known theatregoer in this city. All the principal actors and actresses received unusually warm greetings on their first en which Mr Wallack said to a reporter was the longest he has ever known. Mr. Wallack came down to say good bye to his old associates, but left the theatre be fore the conclusion of the fourth act.

It was then that Mr. Gilbert, after being twice called out, said: "I wish that Mr. Wallack could have addressed you to-night, but you must accept me as his substitute. It is now nearly twentysix years since I joined his father's company, playing Peter Teazle as my first part. In all those years it has been my greatest pride to have had your kindness, your appreciation, your indulgence, and I think I may add your friendship. (Applause.) The series of revivals during the last two months has been exceedingly gratifying to me, for it has shown that the appreof the standard old plays is not extinct. I ciation of the standard old plays is not extinct. I should be very sorry if the New-York public, my public (applause), should have determined to shut their eyes and ears to standard works and to accept only modern syllabub.

"I regret very much the final breaking up of the associations of twenty-six years. But I don't bid you farewell. (Great applause.) There have been reports that I was about to retire. Why should I! (Laughter and applause.) I know I am old-that is an old story. What young people call a 'chestnut,' though I will co fess I am not young enough to see the point of that joke. I don't believe you are wearled of me. (No! no!) Once more I thank you from the bottom of my heart for all your kindness."

All the cast were called for twice after this speech and again at the end of the play.

CONQUERED BY HIS WEARNESS.

REGRET EXPRESSED BY HIS FELLOW ACTORS FOR

JOHN D. GILBERT.

It was stated in the notice of "Natural Gas," produced at the Figh Avenue Theatre last Tuesday, that John D. Gilbert, one of the three comedians who was starred, did not appear and his place was taken by the stage manager, Mr. Craven. Later in the week his permanent retirement from the company was chronicled. Although this was necessitated by his own weakness and over-indulgence, there are some sad and peculiar features of the story. Mr. Gilbert first came into prominence on the variety stage as partner in an act with Courtright, the original " Flewy Flewy." He was married on the day before the ter rible fire in the Newhall House, and on that awful night he and his wife finding all avenues of escape cut off, were forced to Jump from the top floor windows into blankets held by the fire

Mr. Gilbert escaped with his life, but his wife was instantly killed. The shock to the husband was fol-lowed by an attack of brain fover. Although Mr. Gil-bert has since married happily and has two children, it is said by his friends that he has never forgotten the horrors of that night, and that his lapses are due to a desire to drown memory. Whatever may be his fallings, he has many warm friends, and nothing but expressions of regret were heard in the atrical circles at his forced severance from an enter-prise that was extremely profitable. Still no one pleces has been the "Esmonds of Virginia." My tour here is to be for twenty-eight weeks, five of which will be passed at the Union Square Theatre."

The Crown Prince, though absorbed in his extensive duties, confers with the Empress daily, apart from his visit to his father. This marked change in the Crown Prince's demeanor was coincident with the visit of Queen Victoria, whose success in conciliating him proves to be more enduring than was anticipated. The Crown Prince's attention to the details of military matters is evinced in an order to the brigade under his command as to what tunes the bands shall henceforth play on the march. They must not be borrowed from operas, but must be old-time tunes formerly played when going to war or on a triumphant return therefrom. A COMMERCIAL SENSATION.

The sensation of the week has been the failure of the manufacturer Heinrich Ruffer, whose works were Crimmitzschau. The event attracts attention beyoud its intrinsic importance as a result of the tariff measures of Russia. Owing to the Russian import duties on cotton stuffs Herr Huffer had to pay enormous sums to carry on his business. A fall in value of a rouble increased his losses. The firm will probably be converted into a joint stock company. The failure has caused German traders to ask whether there is a possible profit in Russian business or manufacturers must seek other markets.

COMPLAINTS OF FALL RIVER SPINNERS. Fall River, Mass., May 5 (Special).-Secretary Howard to-day issued a call for the monthly meeting of the Union to be held on Tuesday night. It deals principally with the complaints from different mills to be brought before the meeting. The principal of these is regarding poor cotton and overtime At several mills spinners have lately complained to the superintendents of the poor quality of cotton. They say the work goes worse than usual at this season of the year and that if it continues, it will be impossible for them to run at all in the summer. Mill men say that these complaints have come during the few warm days of the past two weeks. They say they cannot regulate the quality of the cotton crop and that it is impossible to prevent getting some poor cotton. Several mills are now trying to work off such poor cotton as they have on hand before hot weather sets in, to make the least possible trouble. Regarding overtime, spinners complain that several mills are starting up regularly ten minutes ahead of time, and that some run over as much as one hour and a half per week.

FANNY DAVENPORT IN A NEW ROLE. TESTIMONT TAKEN IN HER PROCEEDINGS FOR A DI-VORCE FROM EDWIN E. PRICE.

It has been rumored for several months in theatrica circles that Miss Fanny Davenport was going to seek a divorce from her husband, Edwin E. Price, but no positive steps were taken till last Friday. Ex-Judge Dittonhoefer, counsel for Miss Davenport, then appeared before Judge Barrett in Supreme Court, Cham-bers, who appointed George Putnam Smith referee to hear the testimony, taking of which was begun yesterday. It is understood that the cause for which full divorce is asked is unfaithfulness to the marriage vows, out the name of the corespondent could not be learned. Mr. Price will probably not oppose any defence. suit is a curious sequel to the circumstances attending Miss Davenport's marriage to Mr. Price. He was at that time her "leading man" and the husband of an actress playing under her maiden name, Kate Baker. Although fully aware of her husband's infidelity, Miss Baker was for a long time strongly opposed to giving him his freedom, but she finally brought divorce pro-ceedings, which, of course, resulted in her favor, and t is said that she received $5,000 damages. Soon after his marriage to Miss Davenport, Mr. Price deserted the stage and took charge of her business. Since that time he has only played Bill Sykes to her Nancy on the rare occasions when she has appeared in that part. Mr. Price went to Paris early this year to make final arrangements with Sardou for "La Tosca," and it is only since his return that there has been any serious trouble between himself and his wife. Although he attended to all the business during the recent engagement at the Broadway Theatre, it was generally known that their relations were not amicable and that they had ceesed to live together.

A fair proportion of Miss Davenport's earnings during her remarkably lucrative presentation of "Fedora" was taken by Mr. Price, and it is believed that he will next season be interested in the management of one or more attractions. His name has already been mentioned in connection with "Paul Kauvar" and Miss Julia Mariowe's centemplated starring tour.

Miss Davenport has declared herself unlikely to venture again into matrimony but this declaration is regarded by theatrical people as far from conclusive. On Tucsday next she will start for San Francisco where she will produce "La Tosca" at the Baldwin Theatre. The only number of her late cast who will accompany her is Melbourne McDowell, who will in future play "Scarpla." It may be remembered that only a low days have passed since Mr. McDowell obtained a divorce from his wife.

Minister of Public Instruction, apropos of his Education budget. For once the members, old and young, of the Tcheque group found common cause with the German group, it is thought from utterly opposite reasons. The Germans charged Dr. Gautsch with organizing Slavisation in Austria. A Bohemian Deputy, Herr Knepek, in the course of a violent oration against the clerical and anti-German tendencies embodied in the proposals of Prince Lichtenstein, as approved by the Government, declared that their adoption would lead to a rising of the German population of Bohemia. On the other hand, the Tcheque Deputies reproached flerr Gautsch with partiality toward the Germans and charged him with official corruption. Some of the speakers did not spare reflections upon his private life. York; Mrs. J. Burnett, Miss Burnett, H. Burnett, Robert Bacon, E. E. Floyd and family, T. Nicherson, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. REHBARSING "THE LADY OR THE TIGER." Washington, May 5 (Special).-The McCauil Opera Company has been busily engaged this week in rehearsing Sidney Rosenfeld's new opera, "The Lady or The Tigor," at Albaugh's Grand Opera House. night the company left Washington for New-York preparatory to producing the opera at Wallack's Theatre on Monday evening. Considerable interest has been felt here regarding the new opera. Colonel McCaull has been overrun with applications from persons who desired to be present at the rehearsals, but they have been all refused. Even members of the McCauli Opera Company, not cast for the new opera, who are now playing a five weeks' engagement here, have been refused admission, as Colonel McCaull is determined to keep the secret until after Monday night's perfor Among the cast are Mathilde Cottrelly, Caterino Marco, Madeline Lucette, Eugene Oudin, DeWolf Hopper, Francis Galllard, Jefferson DeAngelis

AUSTIN CORBIN SAILS FOR EUROPE. Austin Corbin sailed for Europe resterday on the French Line steamer La Champagne. Ruror couples his visit with negotiations connected with the reorganization details of the Philadelphia and Reading, Railroad, but no definite statement of his purposes can be obtained from his friends nor could they be ob-tained from Mr. Corbin prior to his departure. It is supposed in well-informed circles that the floating of the $26,000,000 4 per cent loan of Reading will be facilitated by Mr. Corbin supplementing the efforts of the bankers who are engaged in the transaction.

Alfred Saily did not sail, as was expected a month ago, with Mr. Corbin. He went out to his country place on Friday night to be gone until to-morrow. His plans for sailing to Europe are understood to be extremely unsettled.

Mr. Corbin is accompanied on his European trip by his daughter, Mrs. Champollon. It is not known when Mr. Corbin will return.

in High Bridge. Four years ago the Rev. D. H. Martin a young clergyman, was called as the first regular pasto s young clergyman, was called as the first regular postor over the congregation, which worshipped in a small chapel, and the results has been that the church membership is quadrupled. The chupel has been enlarged, but as the number of worshippers are rapidly increasing, the church has purchased seven adjoining lots. A subsciption for this object, headed by Mrs. Anderson, of Woody Crest, with $1,000, encouraged Mrs. William B. Ogden to subscribe a like amount. Then Schuyler and James Anderson gave another $1,000, which example was generously followed by their brother-in-law, William N. Clark, who has contributed nearly $2,000 more. Other subscriptions from the residents in the vicinity and their friends has swelled the total to nearly $10,000. The ground was broken for the new church last September.

YACHTSMEN DISCUSS "HARBORS."

LAST LECTURE OF THE SEASON BIFORE THE SEA WANHAKA-CORINTHIAN CLUB.

eighth and last lecture of the season's course before the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club was de-livered last night at the club-house by Commander H. C. Taylor, United States Navy, his subject being "Harbors." After general remarks concerning the circumstances and conditions which combine to make a good harbor, the Commander stated that probably the best one in the United States is Gardiner's Bay. which could accommodate with safety and comfort about 13,000 ships of the present average connage, while Boston has room for but 2,000 and New-York for 11,000.

He thought that, though the damage may be im perceptible at present, the dumping of refuse into the waters about New-York would eventually work great mischief to the harbor. At present he would admit that the elements were working in opposition to the dumpers, but if they should suddenly change so as to favor the deposit of obstructive matter the damage would soon be immense. The harbor of New Lota could not be rated as first-class owing to the bar, but New York is the central commercial point of the world and might easily have a port which would be second to none.

The danger of the passage at Sandy Hook becoming closed by the shifting sands might be obviated by the construction of letties at both sides. The Hell Gate entrance he did not consider suitable for commercial purposes and believed that if the Sandy Hook channels should become immessable a great shipping mercial purposes and believed that if the Sandy Hook channels should become impassable a great shipping port independent of New York would probably grow
